

VICTORY FOR JOSEPH H. SHEA

Was Nominated For Appellate Judge By the Democratic State Convention.

LARGE MAJORITY OVER WRAY

Seymour Honored With Two Nominations.—Local Contest Will Come Now.

Judge Joseph H. Shea of this city was triumphant in the Democratic state convention at Indianapolis Thursday, winning the nomination for judge of the appellate court. There was but one ballot Judge Shea received 1,291 1/2 votes to 467 1/2 cast for Albert F. Wray of Shelbyville, the dark horse who entered the race Wednesday evening.

The contest was the last one before the convention adjourned and the balloting did not begin until about 8:30 p. m. Judge Shea's name was presented by J. H. Matlock of this city. Although both Shea and Wray are allied with the Taggart machine which was in control of the convention it has been understood for some time that the Seymour man had the promise of the support of the leaders and he was picked as a winner by the knowing ones from the start.

The nomination of Judge Shea gives Jackson county two places on the ticket. Attorney General Honan having been nominated by acclamation Thursday afternoon. Local Democrats are enthusiastic over the outcome and citizens of Seymour and the county regardless of party are congratulating the winners, being glad of all honors that come this way. Between thirty and forty persons from this county attended the convention.

The hottest fight in the convention was for lieutenant-governor; four ballots were required to nominate O'Neill. On the first ballot Jackson county gave Clore of Johnson county 18 votes, on the second the delegation divided, giving Clore 6, and Scales, Fortune, Denny and O'Neill 3 each; on the third it gave Clore, Fortune and O'Neill 4 each and the others 3 each; on the fourth Clore and O'Neill received 5 each and Scales and Fortune 4 each.

The success of Judge Shea in the state convention means the opening of a local contest. Judge Shea did not announce his candidacy for the nomination for appellate judge until the delegates to the judicial convention from this county had been selected and instructed for him so that he was sure of renomination for circuit judge if he failed to realize his ambition for higher honors. His nomination Thursday will open the way for the nomination of some one else for circuit judge. O. O. Swails of this city will be in the race it is well understood and he is considered to be on the slate for the honor. It is said that in the selection of judicial delegates some time ago, particular care was taken to see that as many of Swail's friends as possible were landed on the delegation, it being understood by numbers of the leaders that Shea would likely be out of the race later. D. A. Koehenhour it is reported, will likely take a chance on the nomination. The name of S. A.

WANTS DAMAGES Member of the Smart Set Is Suing the Pennsylvania.

Representatives of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company were in Seymour to take depositions from members of the Smart Set theatrical company in a case in which Clara Neff of that company is suing the railroad company for $2,000 damages. Miss Neff's home is at Columbus and the suit is filed in the Bartholomew county court. She claims that several months ago while the company was in the south she became sick and her mother sent her a ticket to Chattanooga from Columbus to come home but that the railroad company failed to deliver it. The theatrical manager would not give her money and as a consequence she says she was compelled to continue travel and became worse, that in her voice and otherwise she suffered permanent injuries and her career as an actress was imperiled. She claims the failure of the company to deliver the ticket entitles her to $2,000 damages and she wants the money. She is still with the company which appears at the Majestic here tonight.

MARRIED. WILLEY-AUFFENBERG.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Willey Thursday evening, when their son, Carl Willey, was united in marriage to Miss Lizzie Aufenberg, by the Rev. D. L. Thomas of the First M. E. church. About fifty guests were present including relatives and friends.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Aufenberg of Laurel street. The groom is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Willey, and at present has a position at the McCoy-Thompson garage. They are both popular among their friends. After the ceremony last night a reception was tendered them and a wedding supper was served. They will reside with the groom's parents.

New Kind of Farming.

When an alligator farm was started near Los Angeles the projectors were laughed at. The hilarity was ill-timed, for big profits are being made. On one of the two farms are two thousand of the reptiles, large and small. The original stock came from Florida and Louisiana.

In the warm and congenial climate of southern California the conditions are highly favorable to the raising of the saurian. The farm is laid out on the banks of a small mountain stream which in its course has formed a number of lakes and ponds. These are surrounded by strong netting to inclose the groups separately, according to age.

The older ones are fed at long intervals, about thirty-five pounds of fresh meat at a meal, from May until October, when they all stop eating and hibernate for the winter. Some have already gone into their winter homes, long tunnels running underground; and a row of heads like logs along the banks of the stream may be seen.

About June the alligators become more sensitive to disturbance, as the females then begin nesting. They bellow if approached.

The female fashions her nest by scraping together with her hind feet a pile of rubbish comprising rushes, sticks and mud. Here she deposits from thirty to forty long, narrow eggs, completely concealing them, and if not interfered with she stands on guard until they are hatched by the heat of the sun. On the farm the nests are emptied as soon as the animal has completed laying and the eggs are taken to the incubators to be hatched. Great care is given to this part of the industry.

Everything from tanning to manufacturing articles made from the skin is done in Los Angeles.

Many of the railroad companies have long since decreed that railroad business and booze will not suit and forbid their employees to drink intoxicants while on duty, and the Big Four has gone one step further and passed an order forbidding its employees to smoke while on duty. While this habit has been very common, the company holds that besides the tendency to make one careless of his duties, the habit is also offensive to many of its patrons and hence the decree that the old pipe be consigned to the scrap heap.

LABOR SAVING Some of the Devices That Have Entered Into Modern Day Life.

Labor-saving devices have entered into all the activities of this modern day life and the possibilities of the future are difficult to measure. The farm is coming in for its share of the labor-saving devices and with the perfecting of farm machinery, mechanical energy is displacing manual labor and the "hired man" is not in demand as he once was.

It is predicted that within a very few years electricity will be doing the greater part of the work on the farm. With traction lines touching almost every part of the state, the current can be carried right to the farmer's home. The present day motors are so simple in construction that no special knowledge is necessary to operate them. It is only necessary to open and close the switch to start or stop the motor.

At a recent show, held in New York city, a company undertook to show, with the co-operation of manufacturers of farming machinery, just what can be done with electricity on a farm, and this is the list of devices which the outfit of motors would drive.

1. The farm's water supply was furnished by an automatic pump, to the confusion of the old oaken bucket.
2. The irrigating department was equipped with a centrifugal pump, which could also be used at any required pressure in case of fire.
3. A refrigerator machine, milk cooler, cream separator, automatic churn and butter worker, bottle washer, even an ice cream freezer for Sunday dinner, were installed with separate motors in the dairies.
4. A large threshing machine, with motor drive, illustrated what could be accomplished by the application of motors to outdoor machinery.
5. A silo with an accompanying motor driven silo filler was exhibited.
6. Corn shellers and feed choppers equipped with individual motors showed how the smaller machines may be operated.
7. Types of laundry machinery driven by individual motors showed how the smaller machines may be operated.
8. A sheep shearer, electrically driven through a flexible shaft, was another variation of electricity's accomplishments. This device could also be used for grooming cattle or horses.
9. Ventilating fans, household equipment, cooking devices and the electric lights or an electric torch completed this exhibit.

TENDERED A RECEPTION

Miss Laura Peters, Formerly of Seymour, Honored at Jeffersonville.

The Jeffersonville Star has the following to say regarding a young woman, who formerly lived in Seymour:

Miss Laura Peters, instructor of short-hand at the Jeffersonville Business College, was last night tendered a delightful reception by the older teachers, and the pupils of the school in honor of the anniversary of her birth, and the affair was one of the nicest of the season, everyone present having a most enjoyable time.

Night school is held every night, and as usual, Miss Peters went to the school about seven thirty o'clock to assume her duties, but when she got there, she was met by about fifty-four pupils and their friends, and instead of taking to their books and studies, the evening was turned into fun and frolic, and it was one never to be forgotten by those who attended. During the evening Miss Peters was presented with a handsome gold-bracelet, and refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. All parted at a late hour voting the evening one of the most pleasant they had ever spent.

A few interesting games were played after which a number of speeches were made and refreshments served.

Besides the bracelet, Miss Peters was presented with a beautiful birthday cake. Miss Peters was asked to make a speech and in a pleasing way responded by expressing her thanks to the school for the gifts and good time in her behalf.

Prof. Gross was called upon for a speech, and responded also by thanking each and every one for their assistance in making the surprise a success.

A photographer was present who took flashlights of the group.

FEMININE PHILOSOPHY.

The older people grow the less interest they have in anything the name of which is hard to pronounce.

The woman may be the one who starts the love affair, but nine times in ten it is the man who ends it.

You may not think you are having a good time now, but the day is coming when your idea of a happy time will be just feeling well.

If the dead women could speak on the day of their funeral they would say to the donors of floral offerings: "How sweet of you! It is just what I wanted!"

Just about the time a man gets so used to the furniture he can make his way around in the dark without falling over it and breaking his neck, his wife decides it is time to move it.

When there is nothing else on earth left to laugh at, hunt up some woman's clock and laugh in its face, for when it says 2, the hour hand is two hours ahead and the minute hand is thirty minutes late, and the woman to whom it belongs has to do a problem in arithmetic before she can tell if it is time to get breakfast or go to bed.

WELL?

Does your child break into the conversation when you have visitors?

Does he leave his clothes lying all over the house?

Does he answer you back in the presence of others, and when you tell him to do anything does he begin to argue the matter with you?

Does he eat surreptitiously between meals and lie out of it?

Does he lay his hands on almost anything he wants to make something out of without asking your permission?

Does he fall into a passion of desire over some article of clothing that you hesitate about getting for him, and then take a sudden dislike to it and absolutely refuse to wear it?

Does he come down late to breakfast?

Does he say "Huh?" "Gee?"

And if not, why not? You are his parent and he is living in the United States of America.—Life.

TRAVELER'S OBSERVATIONS

We are nearest the creator on the farm.

There is nothing worse than a fair violin player.

Don't count your collections before they are collected.

The altitude record in flights of fancy is broken every day.

Graft is the result of intellectual laziness on the part of those grafted.

It isn't what wages a man receives, it is what he is able to buy with what he receives.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

WORSE THAN DEATH.

"My friends, you may laugh sometimes at old things like the law and religion when the say 'Thou shalt not.' You and I may think that was written for old fogies, but what they say we shall not do we cannot do without suffering. I have learned the wages of sin is death. It's worse than death—it's hell on earth."

That was the utterance of Louise Suydam Noble, who eloped from her husband, a millionaire of New York, with Frederick Noble, a plumber, and afterward, being divorced, married Noble.

The sequel? Noble and his new wife committed suicide by lying down together before a gas range and turning on all the jets.

The excitement of the elopement was over, the newspaper notoriety at an end, the final divorce papers granted. Three weeks before the suicide Noble and Mrs. Suydam were married, and the life of the runaways settled down into humdrum, monotonous living.

It was then Mrs. Noble uttered the truthful words about law and religion and sin and death and hell.

Poor woman! There was added to her suffering "sorrow's crown of sorrows—remembering happier things." She admitted the man from whom she ran away was the only man she had ever loved or ever could love.

"I've never loved any other man but Walter, but to put myself right before the world I feel I should marry Fred."

For her it was hell on earth. And for Noble little less.

There was no newness to find in the other. All the interest each had discovered had been exhausted by clandestine meetings. She had cut herself off from the only one she loved. And now that he had won her Noble did not love her.

It was worse than death for both. When will men and women ever learn that two and two are four and cannot by the very nature of things be three or five? When will they learn that "sin and punishment grow on the same stem?"

Law is not law because it is bound in a leather book; it is in the book because it is law. Punishment for sin is not true because it is in the Bible; it is in the Bible because it is true.

"Thou shalt not" means what it says. It is not "written for old fogies" alone, but for foolish, perverse young women and men as well.

THE NAME OF THE YEAR.

When John reaches his twelfth birthday we say of him that he is 12 years old, and we keep on saying the same thing until he reaches his thirteenth birthday. Then we make a sudden sally forward and declare that he is 13. At no time between the twelfth and thirteenth birthdays have we stated his age correctly, though some of us come a little nearer to it by saying that "he is 12, growing on 13." Common conversation requires a rough-and-ready way of indicating a person's age with reasonable accuracy, but it has no need of scientific exactness. We treat the calendar in much the same way. One year after Christ was born the first year of the Christian era ended and the second year began, says the Portland Oregonian. But, with colloquial inaccuracy, the time was spoken of as "the year one" until the second year was finished, just as we say John is one year old until his second year on earth is completed. Then we say he is two years old until he is three. The first century of the Christian era comprised the time between the birth of Christ and the year 100, the second century ran from the year 100 to the year 200, and so on. Each year as it passes has a name, but the name is not the same as its number. For example, the year which goes by the name 1912 is really the thirteenth year of the twentieth century.

The Eiffel Tower changes its dress every five or six years at a cost of from $14,000 to $16,000. The date is at hand when 50 painters will find occupation for three or four months in covering the 180,000 square yards of its surface with a new coat of paint. The shade has yet to be decided upon. The Eiffel Tower started 22 years ago in orange, wore red in 1893, golden yellow in 1899 and silver white on the summit and chrome yellow at the base in 1907. There are persons who would vote for an invisible shade of khaki for the coming renewal. The tower is now used as a wireless telegraph station, as a post for an electric device to prevent hailstorms and as a guiding mark for aviators.

The west can outdo the east, when it sets about it. That Oriental ball in San Francisco threw the famous Hyde ball in New York into the shade, says the Milwaukee Wisconsin. The guests at the New York affair merely went to European history for their costumes, for the most part; while San Francisco searched the Orient, as became a city drawing its wealth from the Pacific, and a delighted public reads of a hostess in mauve pantaloons embroidered in gold thread, and of her mother in Oriental trousers of coral pink. Such a detail as a Salome dance by six young girls was but a trifle in comparison with the evident gorgeousness of the ball as a whole.

Throwing away lighted matches, cigars and cigarettes is now a misdemeanor in New York, and offenders will be prosecuted. The carelessness of this practice, trivial as it is regarded, started one of the biggest fires in the history of the world in this city, and is responsible for the recent tragic fire in New York, in which one of the prices paid was the life of a brave fire chief. Casualties and tragedies so easily prevented amount to crimes, and this is the first step toward treating them as such.

A man in Philadelphia who some years ago befriended a tramp to the extent of one dollar has been left a fortune by the grateful nomad. But this need not cause a rush of sympathetic benefactors towards the Wandering Willie fraternity under the delusion that this case is the rule and not the exception.

A woman in Pennsylvania is a grandmother at the age of thirty-three, and a woman in Connecticut has just taken her first automobile ride at the age of ninety-two. Women in this feminist era are beating the record at both ends of the age limit.

Theatrical booking agents have resolved to quit giving encouragement to stage-struck young girls who have run away from home. This is likely to help considerably in uplifting the stage.

Many Driven From Home.

Every year, in many parts of the country, thousands are driven from their homes by coughs and lung diseases. Friends and business are left behind for other climates, but this is costly and not always sure. A better way—the way of multitudes—is to use Dr. King's New Discovery and cure yourself at home. Stay right there, with your friends, and take this safe medicine. Throat and lung troubles find quick relief and health returns. Its help in coughs, colds, grip, croup, whooping-cough and sore lungs make it a positive blessing. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by The Andrews Drug Co.

DON'T know which ever is worst, to see the beautiful times that there are in the world and not be in 'em, or to see people that might be in 'em and ain't.

MISCELLANEOUS DISHES.

A most wholesome dessert and one that is not expensive is—

Rhubarb and Raisin Pudding.—Cut a pint of rhubarb in half-inch pieces and sprinkle with a cup of sugar. Let stand an hour or more with a cup of chopped raisins, then add a pint of breadcrumbs and two tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Put in layers into a buttered baking dish, cover for the first half hour. Serve with liquid sauce or cream.

A little grated cheese with chopped onion and French dressing makes a new and delicious filling for sandwiches.

Prunes in Lemon Jelly.—Cook prunes until soft, take out the stones without breaking them; add half a cup of figs or half the quantity used of prunes, and put into a mold. Pour over lemon jelly and set away to mold. Serve with whipped cream.

Vegetable and Peanut Soup.—Cut in small pieces two medium-sized potatoes, one large carrot and two stalks of celery, one large tomato and cook in salted water with a bunch of soup herbs. When the vegetables are tender, put through a sieve. If desired, add two tablespoonfuls of peanut butter which has been softened in a little hot water. There should be enough liquid to serve four.

Beet and Cheese Salad.—Make cottage cheese into balls and stick a walnut meat on each side. Slice small cooked beets and put two cheese balls and three slices of beets on each lettuce leaf or nest. Keep on ice until ready to serve. Add French dressing just before serving.

For those who object to pastry, a crustless pie will be welcome. Butter a deep pie plate with plenty of butter, then dust over a coating of flour, pour in the pie filling, pumpkin, custard or any kind desired, and bake as usual.

Second Marriages.

In the April American Magazine, Kin Hubbard, in response to the question, "Do you believe in second marriages?" writes as follows:

"If a gentleman can fail in business in October and pay five cents on the dollar and spend the winter in Bermuda and open up for business again at St. Paul, Minnesota, I don't see why some poor, misguided girl should not have a second chance on the matrimonial market.

"Some women are smarter than others and get onto their husbands in six months others in two years or three years or longer, according to their brain development. Any girl that gets onto her husband after any length of time, if she still be fairly marketable, should set about at once to get rid of him. It is always a good plan, however, to have folks in comfortable circumstances to go back to.

"I often see young wives going along the streets with husbands wearing side whiskers and I wonder what life holds for them. After two or three seasons of freezing around a baseburner, mingling with chickens and peddlers, running up bills for nappies and malted milk at the corner drugstore, attempting to raise a fern, forgetting to sew a button on here and there, dressing in the kitchen in January, and trying to pick out a go-cart together, love nearly always gives up, packs a few belongings and and quietly gets out. Then sentiment hands in her resignation and it's a cold business partnership from that time on—with each partner watching the books.

"I always hate to hear some faded out woman, who caught on before her father failed, knocking a second marriage. If she can find contentment in canary birds, asparagus beds or settlement work that's her business."

County Assessor Cross and Capt. Applewhite were here today on their way home from the Democratic convention.

LADY'S FOUR-GORED SKIRT.

An attractive skirt model is outlined in this illustration. The skirt is composed of four gores and can be made with the elevated or regular waist line. The narrow lines are preserved but the lower edge is widened by the plait at each side-front seam. The popular panel back is effected, the closing being invisible under this panel. This model is well adapted for wear with dressy blouses. The design has no applied decorations, its (trigness) being accomplished by its good lines. As a wash skirt, linen, repp or poplin can be used. Serge is adaptable, or, in fact, any appropriate woolen material.

The pattern (5705) is cut in sizes from 22 to 30 inch waist measure. To make the skirt in the medium size will require 5 yards of 36 inch material.

To procure this pattern send 10 cents to "Pattern Department" of this paper. Write name and address plainly, and be sure to give size and number of pattern.

PHYSICAL WRECK RESTORED TO HEALTH BY GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY.

I feel it my duty to furnish you with my testimonials as to what your remedy Swamp-Root did for me when I was a physical wreck from kidney and bladder trouble.

Some years ago I was not able to do any work and could only just creep around and am satisfied that had it not been for Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root I would not have lived. After using the preparation for one month I was able to work some and when I had used $8.00 worth of Swamp-Root I could do a good day's work. I used about $10.00 worth altogether and would not take $10,000 for the good that it did me. I consider it a God-send to suffering humanity for the diseases for which you recommend it and have recommended it to many sufferers.

April Fool Joke.

Where is the wool doughnut, so fried and browned in fat as to deceive the very elect? Where is the empty purse nailed down to the sidewalk? Where is the April Fool placard attached to the back of the sedate and conservative citizen as he marches majestically through the streets of the town?

April Fool's day, like St. Valentine and many other traditional old customs seems largely to have fallen into the hands of the youngsters. Annually we still hear of Tommy asking Johnny if he sees the bird up in that tree, or if he is going to the circus this afternoon. But it is several years doubtless since your wife has tried to fool you, or you have tried to fool her. Perish the thought, but are you growing old?

Anyway, we must admit our admiration of the people who still retain enough of play spirit and the child heart to keep up the pranks and festivals of childhood. There are still adults who get more fun out of the candles and glitter of the Christmas tree than from the most expensive present. And one hopes there are still households in which the sporting chance of fooling your better half is much more interesting than a flier in stocks.—Exchange.

COURT BARRED THIS EVIDENCE

Government Loses Important Point In Sugar Trust Trial.

"AN ADMISSION OF GUILT"

This is What Mr. Wise, the Government Prosecutor, Maintains This Resolution Prepared For Adoption by the Stockholders of Sugar Trust Amounted to, but the Court Held That It Did Not Relate to the Case.

New York, March 22.—At the trial of John E. Parsons and the other sugar trust directors the government sustained a defeat when it tried to have put in evidence a resolution by which the company agreed to indemnify John E. Parsons and Henry O. Havemeyer for any loss they might sustain personally through an action brought against them as individuals as a result of the Segal loan of $1,250,000 made, it is alleged, as the result of a conspiracy to close up Segal's rival refinery in Philadelphia.

It appeared from the minute book which the government had that a stockholders' meeting at which Mr. Havemeyer voted proxies for 548,000 shares and at which, according to District Attorney Wise, only a corporal's guard of stockholders besides himself were present, such a resolution was prepared for the directors to pass at a meeting held immediately after the stockholders' meeting. The resolution itself was not read, but Mr. Wise fought hard to get it before the jury, contending that it was virtually an admission of guilt on the part of Mr. Parsons at least, Mr. Havemeyer being dead.

"This man," said Mr. Wise, referring to Mr. Havemeyer, "had taken $1,250,000 out of the treasury of his company, which, under the law, he had no right to take, and therefore in its abstraction these men committed a crime. This contract was in violation of the Sherman law and the company never had appeared as a party to the loan for obvious reasons. Throughout the entire period these men as directors violated their corporate duties in allowing the corporation to lend money in this matter. They go to work again to perpetuate another crime by using proxies in this manner without letting stockholders know what the proxies were used for. The restitution was not in the interests of the corporations, but in the interests of the individuals who had done an illegal act."

James K. Beck said he did not want the statement to go unchallenged that the action of Mr. Parsons and Mr. Havemeyer had been a breach of trust. It had never been held as such by the courts, he said, though Mr. Wise contended that the New Jersey court had so declared it to be. Judge Hand finally held that the passage of the indemnifying resolution, though made at a time when civil suits were threatened, did not bear on the conspiracy for which the men are being tried. By his ruling much evidence which the government was prepared to offer from the books of the company became barred.

BOY'S BODY FOUND

Missing Terre Haute Lad Had Fallen Into Reservoir.

Terre Haute, Ind., March 22.—The body of Charles Stevens, the eight-year-old boy missing from Whitcomb Heights, west of the city, was found in the reservoir of a mine in West Terre Haute. The boy started to the mine Monday to see his grandfather, who works there. He was not seen by anyone who knew him after he left home. The lad evidently had become overbalanced while looking into the reservoir.

PEOPLE NOTICED IT.

Last spring many of the people who know Gerald Rogers of New York, were talking about how pale and delicate he was. No one had to tell him, for he realized his bad condition.

It was spring—just the time to do something for his blood—and he decided to do it. His recent letter tells the whole story: "I was very weak, delicate and pale all spring, owing to run-down health and poor blood. But since taking Vinol my health has been built up splendidly and I have recovered my former strength. My blood is now rich and healthy and my appetite is good."

The very best spring medicine you can possibly get is Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil, because it not only purifies the blood but builds up flesh and strength and makes quantities of rich new blood.

Make up your mind right now that you will try Vinol (on our guaranty that it must please you or cost you nothing) for it will make you feel better than you have felt for years. The Andrews Drug Co., Seymour, Ind.

COULDN'T KEEP MR. HALL DOWN

He Just Would Go Before the Convention.

YES, AND HE DID IT, TOO

But Then, He Didn't Stay in Gubernatorial Race Long Enough to Permit the Issue to Come to a Vote of the Delegates, Withdrawing Immediately in Favor of Samuel M. Ralston, Democracy's Nominee For Governor.

Indianapolis, March 22.—Samuel M. Ralston of Lebanon, whose name heads the state ticket of Indiana's Democracy, did not get the long coveted nomination without a show of opposition, after all. Lieutenant Governor Frank J. Hall was in the race all the way, and though his promised delegates were few in number and his race hopeless, he would not retire until his name had been presented in the convention. Then he made a good-natured little talk withdrawing from the contest, moving that Mr. Ralston's nomination be made by acclamation. This motion was carried amid much cheering for the nominee, who responded with quite a speech, considering the fact that the delegates just previously had listened to lengthy addresses delivered by Governor Marshall and Senator Kern, temporary and permanent chairmen, respectively, of yesterday's Democratic state convention. This was the first formal business of the day following the adoption of the resolutions. These resolutions, submitted by State Senator Frank Kistler of Logansport, covered pretty much the same ground customarily covered in such documents, and were chiefly notable for the enthusiastic endorsement of Governor Marshall to the coming national convention as Indiana Democracy's candidate for president. The platform reaffirmed the party's position on the local option question and declared against any movement toward the repeal of the Moore remonstrance law.

With the nomination of Ralston and the renomination by acclamation of the unopposed incumbents, Secretary of State Ellingham, Auditor O'Brien, Treasurer Vollmer, Attorney General Honan, Superintendent Greathouse and Statistician Brolley, the delegates proceeded to name a lieutenant governor. There were six aspirants for this place on the ticket, Leonard B. Clore of Johnson county, James W. Fortune of Jeffersonville, Dr. T. D. Scales of Booneville, Clay W. Metzger of Plymouth, W. P. O'Neill of Mishawaka, and Jacob F. Denny of Portland. It required four ballots to determine this contest, O'Neill finally capturing the plum by a vote of 1,111 to 144 for Scales, 234 for Fortune, and 257 for Clore, the other aspirants having withdrawn at various stages of the balloting.

Phillip Zoercher, a Tell City lawyer, was nominated for reporter of the supreme court on the third ballot of a contest in which he was opposed by Harry Strickland of Greenfield, Edward E. Cox of Hartford City, and Charles J. McCullough of Brazil, receiving on the final ballot 1,001 votes to 179 for Strickland and 545 for Cox, McCullough having withdrawn at the close of the second ballot.

John W. Spencer of Evansville was nominated for judge of the supreme court, first district, on the third ballot, receiving 910 votes to 585 for J. C. McNutt of Martinsville and 239 for Edwin M. Corr of Bloomington.

For judge of the supreme court, fourth district, Richard K. Erwin of Fort Wayne was nominated by a vote of 1,151 votes to 599 for his opponent, F. S. Caldwell of Winchester.

Joseph H. Shea of Seymour received the nomination for judge of the appellate court by a vote of 1,291 to 467 for Albert F. Wray of Shelbyville.

The convention also named delegates to the national convention, two from each congressional district and four at large, the "Big Four" being Senators Shively and Kern, Major G. V. Menzies and Thomas Taggart. Electors also were named, one for each congressional district and two at large, George H. Voight of Jeffersonville and John B. Stoll of South Bend.

TAFT WILL IGNORE ALL PERSONALITIES

Will Confine Campaign to "Digitified Discussion."

Washington, March 22.—At the White House there was no official comment on Colonel Roosevelt's speech at Carnegie hall in which he attacked President Taft. It was said Mr. Taft has no intention of making a direct and immediate reply to the speech. It was pointed out, however, that Mr. Taft will continue his present policy of discussing the issues of the campaign without engaging in personal controversy with Colonel Roosevelt or any of the other candidates. If the president does reply to Colonel Roosevelt's remarks in one of his forthcoming speeches the president's remarks will be impersonal. One of the president's advisers takes the position that the best political policy will be completely to ignore Colonel Roosevelt's criticisms and personal references and to conduct the Taft campaign in a dignified discussion of issues and policies without stirring up personal disputes and animosities.

DAN CALLAHAN UNDER ARREST

Said to Be the "Most Wanted" Man In America.

SUSPECTED OF JEWEL THEFTS

Loot Aggregating in Value Above $150,000 Is Said to Have Fallen Into Callahan's Hands in the Course of the Many Daring "Jobs" the Police Declare He Has Been Responsible For in the Past Year.

St. Louis, March 22.—According to detectives, one of the men arrested at Union Station restaurant here admits that he is the Dan Callahan described in the postoffice department circular asking for his arrest, but he has not, so far as known, confessed that he led the gang that stole $100,000 worth of diamonds from Mrs. Malwin Drummond's stateroom on Hamburg-American line steamer in February, 1911. Neither has he admitted being one of the men who bound and gagged two men and stole $10,000 worth of jewels from Edward Albert's store in Chicago in April, 1911, nor has he admitted complicity in any of the other robberies he is suspected of committing, the St. Louis police say, although evidence against him is in possession of the New York police. Callahan's companion who was arrested here with him has not been identified.

Callahan is wanted in St. Louis for supposed complicity in the blowing up of the safe in the Bremen avenue postoffice eighteen months ago. One of these postoffice bandits was captured. The postal officers and Detectives Kal-ser and McCarthy obtained confession from this man which resulted in the arrest of Thomas O'Neill and one other and later in the arrest in Chicago of Martin Thorsen and Allen Humphrey, who were sent to the penitentiary from there for some other offense. The Fifth Bremen avenue postoffice robbed has never been identified.

Callahan was arrested in London a year ago, but he managed to get away. Rewards for his arrest on various charges are said to aggregate $10,000. It was said in St. Louis by detectives that he was the "most wanted" man in the United States.

FRIDAY, MARCH 22, 1912.

The Republican congratulates Attorney General Honan and Judge Shea on their nominations. They are clever gentlemen and deserving of honor at the hands of their party and we are glad of the recognition they have received. Seymour and Jackson county always feel honored when high honors come to men who call this city and county home. It is an unusual circumstance when one of the leading parties places two men from the same city on the ticket and it is an indication of their unusual political strength and influence. Sometimes it happens that politicians and men who have gained prominence are stronger away from home than at home, but both Honan and Shea in local races and in other ways have demonstrated their influence with the party at home and their popularity here.

It is noticed that the Democratic convention did not say anything in indorsing Governor Marshall for president which might embarrass Tom Taggart in any little plans he has for swinging the Indiana delegation to Harmon when deemed amissable. The platform merely commended him to the people of the United States as all right and instructed the delegates to present his name as the only choice of Indiana Democrats for president. Not a word about voting for him to the finish or as long as he is in the race, the customary course in such cases.

It was supposed that the Indiana delegation would name Congressman Dixon as member of the Democratic national committee. Taggart had said he wasn't a candidate for reelection but after indulging in the pleasant little formality of declining reelection twice, he accepted the place again. Dixon did not even receive honorary mention.

RAN INTO SIDING

Strange Accident Causes Two Deaths on an Eastern Road.

New York, March 22.—Two railroad men were killed in an accident on the Philadelphia & Long Branch railroad at Barnegat Pier, on the Jersey coast not far from Seaside park, about 6 o'clock last night. One passenger and three other men connected with the railroad were injured. The wreck was caused by a passenger train, the Long Branch express, from Philadelphia, running on a siding on which a freight train was waiting that the passenger train might pass.

What caused the passenger to take the siding is not known. The officials of the Pennsylvania, who investigated the wreck could not say that the switch had been left open.

Rebel Army Growing.

Monterey, Mexico, March 22.—General Pascual Orozco's rebel army in the state of Chihuahua numbers approximately 4,000 well armed and equipped men, according to authorities who sent word here. He is rapidly perfecting the work of forming the big force into regiments and moving them south to meet the advance of the federals.

Not So, Says He.

New York, March 22.—Enrique C. Creel, former ambassador from Mexico to the United States, and secretary of foreign affairs in the last cabinet of President Diaz, has sent word here that statements published in newspapers in the United States to the effect that he is lending sympathy and support to the revolution against President Madero, are wholly untrue.

Fourteen Mutineers Shot.

Mexico City, March 22.—Fourteen of the twenty-three members of the rural guard, who mutinied at Tlalpan, were shot. The executions were carried out under the suspension of guarantees. The men were captured by federal soldiers in the mountains.

Assassinates Man on Street.

Chicago, March 22.—Harry Adler was shot and fatally wounded in Armour avenue at Twentieth street, it is said, by William Tilson, who escaped. Tilson recently was arrested on complaint of Adler. Adler died on the way to the hospital.

Atlanta, Ga., March 22.—Mrs. Daisy Ulrich Opie Grace, who was held on the charge of shooting her husband, has gained her release on bail and returned to her old home in Philadelphia. The doctors say that Grace may die at any time or may live for weeks.

"MUNITIONS OF WAR"

Mexicans Find That This Covers a Wide Variety of Articles.

El Paso, Tex., March 22.—In spite of the fact that the Mexican rebels hold all of Chihuahua, including the port of Juarez, not an ounce of food, not a cartridge, not a stitch of clothing can they import from the United States. The embargo that went into effect Wednesday is water tight and applies even to supplies purchased in small amounts for residents of Juarez.

The embargo is the result of the recent act of congress making it illegal to export from the United States "munitions of war" into any state on the continent that is in rebellion. Every article that is supposed to be of any use or benefit to an army is under the ban. Under this ruling very little will be permitted to pass. Women's shoes, clothing or hats will be permitted to pass through the port. Farming implements, farm wagons, coal and coke also are allowed to be exported.

There is much feeling in Mexico that the Juarez racetrack is to be attacked and that American property generally throughout northern Mexico is to be confiscated in reprisal, but officers of the rebel army deny this.

The embargo will have a wide effect, eventually, for it will be felt by foreigners as well as Mexicans of all classes.

Detectives Doubt Story.

New York, March 22.—A dispatch from Jacksonville, Fla., states that a man who gave the name of Fred Newsom and said he was a friend of Folke E. Brandt, the former Schiff servant, has confessed there to having mailed the bomb which exploded in the library of Judge Otto A. Rosalsky's apartments. Detectives who have been following several possible clues, say they believe Newsom faked the confession in the hope of receiving free transportation to New York.

The Criticism of Missions

By Rev. Edward A. Marshall,
Director of Missionary Course,
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

It is natural to expect that missionary work will be criticised when one considers the great variety of people interested and the many different views promulgated. There are three or four hundred societies belonging to scores of denominations now working in the field. They have over 20,000 missionaries in active service and are spending more than $30,000,000 annually on the work.

It would be unfair to say that criticism must be prohibited and that no critical questions would be answered. The critic could justly reply that since he was unable to learn how his money was being spent, he would cease to contribute. On the other hand the critic must be fair to the society and worker who naturally expect him to know what he is talking about before he speaks.

Of course there are different kinds of criticism just as there are different kinds of people. One speaks with a view to helpfulness, another criticises because he desires to find reasons to excuse himself from responsibility while a third may talk against the work because he is not content to sanction the use of any ecclesiastical harness or work in harmony with his fellows on any task.

However the person who wishes to be accorded a hearing on missionary work (or any other work) should comply with certain rules, which, if observed will make him an aid to the building up of that work in some substantial, beneficial way.

I. The critic must be a Christian. A man out of Christ looks at the subject from the wrong viewpoint. He naturally thinks it unnecessary to send the gospel to the heathen if he has refused it himself. Neither can he be expected to support a teaching he does not himself believe.

II. The critic must be a soul winner. That is, he must have some adequate realization of the value of a lost soul and must have tried to bring souls to Christ.

III. The critic must be an honest student of missionary work. The great task of missions cannot be learned by intuition. It involves matters touching the personal life and liberties of thousands and the purses of millions. It deals with the deepest principles of organization and requires a broad knowledge of the working value of policies and methods. Therefore the person who would dictate standards for the adoption of missionaries must know whereof he speaks.

IV. The critic should have visited the mission fields or talked freely with missionaries. Theory is one thing and practice is quite another, especially when the theory is created in America, but has to be applied in Africa. Parents find that the course of training applied to one child is sometimes worthless when applied to another, even though the children be in the same family.

Then again, if a person is capable of offering criticism he must see that it is cautiously and wisely given, because:

I. It is unwise to criticise what God has especially commanded. The person who criticises the work of missions must remember that he is dealing with the triune God. Every person of the Godhead is vitally interested, and is also a personal participant in the work of saving the heathen. Therefore the critic stands on perilous ground before his Creator.

II. There are 20,000 missionaries who have believed enough in missions to be out on the field today. The critic who remains at home in a well feathered nest must realize that it is no small thing to put his inexperienced judgment up against the actual labors of consecrated thousands whose universal testimony is that "missions pay."

III. The transformation of the heathen, which has taken place during the past 100 years, overwhelming answers all those who would say that the work is not worth while. Anyone who has watched the evolution of tribes and nations by the process of divine regeneration; who has seen annihilating customs become only items for the historian, and the number of printed languages leap from fifty to more than five hundred, through missionary toil, has surely felt his thoughtless criticisms grow cold on his lips.

These things make a wise man careful in his judgment for he realizes that his influence may mean the weal or woe of some of his fellowmen, both at home and abroad. The man who is not both wise and careful in his speech cannot of course expect men who are in the thick of the fight to leave their posts and come back to where he reclines comfortably in the barracks in order to answer his idle words.

Temperance

WELSH DOCTORS BAR LIQUOR

Pledge Themselves Not to Sanction Its Use in Case of Disease—Unnecessary for Good Health.

At a meeting of the North Wales Temperance federation it was announced that the federation had obtained the signatures of 100 doctors practicing in North Wales to the federation's temperance manifesto. Among those who indorse the manifesto are 34 medical officers of health and 11 have the diploma of inspector of public health.

The fact, said the president, that 100 medical men in North Wales had signed the manifesto was an indication of the great advance of public opinion on the question, and it was bound to make a deep impression upon the sentiment of the country in the near future. The evidence which they now had as temperance reformers of the direct relation between the cost of spirits and the amount consumed, and the effect of the financial provisions of the budget upon the consumption of spirits in the country was very important, as was the proof of the relation between the consumption of liquor and the moral conduct of the people and public order. He hoped the federation would in the near future be able to do a great deal more for the uplifting of the people in North Wales through the means of temperance in the best and widest sense of that word, not merely confining themselves to total abstinence, but taking advantage of every influence which made for the sobriety of the nation.

The following is the text of the manifesto:

"Recognizing the very serious injury to the national health caused by the present-day extensive over-indulgence in the various forms of alcoholic drinks; recognizing also the habit of over-indulgence is seldom, if ever, suddenly acquired, but grows gradually out of what is considered to be a moderate use, and generally in the belief that such moderate use promotes health, increases the power of work, and prolongs life; convinced, moreover, that this belief is a dangerous delusion, and one which the prolonged observation and exact experiments of scientific men have conclusively proved to be so; we, the undersigned, appeal to all our medical brethren in North Wales to join with us in an endeavor to discountenance the various popular errors that still largely prevail upon the subject. We appeal to them especially not to give, or even seem to give, the sanction of their professional authority to any general employment of alcoholic drinks in case of disease. We believe that these drinks are not necessary for the promotion of health; they do not increase, but, on the contrary, impair physical and mental efficiency; that they do not prolong life."

ALCOHOL HURTS THE MEMORY

Degree of Deterioration Varies Greatly in Individuals—All Show Diminution in Their Judgment.

Every person who drinks alcohol to excess, says Dr. Alexander Lambert in an article in Success Magazine, will not show every form of mental deterioration that may be produced by excessive indulgence, and the degree of deterioration in intelligence which goes to make up the sum total of mentality varies greatly in different individuals. All who drink alcohol to excess, however, show some diminution in their judgment. Judgment means the power of recalling various memories of perceptions through the senses, which have come in from the outside world, memories of ideas, memories of emotions, and all the complicated association of ideas that these bring up, and in the recalling of them weigh each one with the other and judge of the value between them. This also means reasoning and decision for action. This power of reasoning and judging is weakened in the alcoholic, and in any brain long poisoned by alcohol it is an impossibility to exercise it. Memory itself is also weakened. There is excessive forgetfulness of the recent past, and in some cases of advanced alcoholism there is absolute forgetfulness of wide gaps of years; a man may be unable to remember anything from the last five minutes back for twenty years, and then remember back to childhood. The memories of childhood are more easily stamped on the brain than are those of adult life, both because it takes less to impress a child, and because there is not the complexity of ideas crowding into the brain, nor the complexity of association of ideas to be recorded. Therefore memories of childhood make a deeper impress and last longer, and so the complex memories of the adult are the first to be forgotten in the alcoholic, and those of childhood remain.

Cigarette Bane of Youth. Excessive smoking of cheap cigarettes is ruining the health of Sheffield's (England) young men and forcing them on the rates, according to the report of the medical officer.

"Some of the patients suffering from disease of the heart and blood vessels admitted smoking as many as 30 cheap cigarettes daily," says the doctor, adding: "Nicotine, when raised to a high temperature, becomes volatilized and decomposed, granting no water vapor is present.

Sunday School Lesson

MARCH 24, 1912.

FEASTING AND FASTING. Mark 2:13-22.

GOLDEN TEXT.—I came not to call the righteous, but sinners. Mark 2:17.

The call of Matthew, the first part of today's lesson, is found in Matthew and Luke, as well as in Mark. But the rest of the lesson, including Matthew's entertainment, and the parables of the new and old cloth and the new and old wine are found only in Mark and Luke. In all the acts and words of Jesus we must see God the Father, remembering such words as these: "I can of mine ownself do nothing." "The Father who sent Me gave me a commandment, what I should say and what I should speak." "The Father who dwelleth in me, He doeth the works" (John v, 30; xii, 49; xiv, 10). His compassion upon the multitude and His readiness to teach them, no matter how weary He was, is our example that we may follow His steps in this as well as in His meekness and patience (1 Pet. ii, 21).

Matthew the publican (Matt. x, 3), or Levi, as he is called by Mark and Luke, may have been turning to Christ in his heart, as probably Zaccheus did, while continuing with doubt in his unpopular calling and longing to be done with it. We might infer this from the readiness with which he left all and rose up and followed Jesus. Many are still being called, but few are ready to follow so promptly. Something of Matthew's gratitude because Jesus called him is seen in the great feast which he made for Jesus in his own house, inviting a great company of publicans and sinners thereto. To see Him eat with publicans and sinners was to the self righteous Pharisees a great stumbling block, for it was their way to have no fellowship with such nor any love for their souls, rather to pass by on the other side of the street and to say, "God, I thank Thee that I am not as other men * * * or even as this publican" (Luke xviii, 11). They never said anything more beautiful or true concerning Him than when they said, "This man receiveth sinners and eateth with them" (Luke xv, 2). The words of Jesus to them at this time are both a parable and its explanation, the parable being, "They that are whole have no need of the physician, but they that are sick," and His explanation of it, "I come not to call the righteous, but sinners, to repentance." These words and those concerning the old and new cloth and wine are found also in Matt. ix, 10-17, and seemingly in the same connection as here, but according to the gospel harmony the record in Matthew referred to a later incident. Be that as it may, His words are more than time or place, and we know that He did repeat some of His words—as, for example, the Sermon on the Mount and the Sermon on the Plain (Matt. v to vii and Luke vi, 17-49).

The righteous whom He did not come to call are spoken of in Luke xviii, 9, as "certain ones which trusted in themselves that they were righteous and despised others." We know that in the matter of true righteousness, as God sees it and desires it, "there is none righteous—no, not one." But there are those who, "being ignorant of God's righteousness and going about to establish their own righteousness, do not submit themselves to the righteousness of God" (Rom. iii, 10; x, 3).

To associate the disciples of John and of the Pharisees seems like a very bad combine, but some of John's disciples were no doubt from the Pharisees and, like too many church folks of today, had not dropped their mere formalities. In Zech. vii we read that when the people inquired of the Lord as to whether they should continue certain fasts or not He asked them, "Did ye fast at all to Me, even to Me?" Then He told them what true fasting in His sight was (Zech. vii, 4-10; Isa. lviii, 6-10). Note how He speaks of Himself as the Bridegroom and His disciples as the children of the bride chamber, no doubt looking onward to the marriage of the Lamb of Rev. xix. We might well ask: Where is now the fasting because of the Bridegroom's absence?

The Men Who Succeed

as heads of large enterprises are men of great energy. Success today demands health. To ail is to fail. It's utter for a man to endure a weak, run-down, half-alive condition when Electric Bitters will put him right on his feet in short order. "Four bottles did me more real good than any other medicine I ever took," writes Chas. B. Allen, Sylva, Ga. "After years of suffering with rheumatism, liver trouble, stomach disorders and deranged kidneys, I am again, thanks to Electric Bitters, sound and well." Try them. S. L. CHERRY, G. A. Seymour, Ind.

Where are those who long for His return, who rejoice greatly because of His voice, glad to decrease if only He may increase? (John iii, 29, 30.)

There is much patchwork in the teaching of our day which is directly contrary to the teaching of our Lord concerning the necessity of a new birth. The old garment of our unrighteousness cannot be mended. It must be a new garment throughout, even the garment of Christ's righteousness which He has provided at such infinite cost (II Cor. v, 21; Rom. x, 4). However unpopular the doctrine may be, it is most plainly written that "the carnal mind is enmity against God, for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be" (Rom. viii, 7). Not a shred of Adam and Eve's fig leaf aprons could be tolerated. The coats of skins were all sufficient. We must sing from the heart the words of Isa. lxi, 10. The so called new thought or new theology will not do, for it is not of God and must therefore be from the adversary, who flatters man by telling him that he is all right and only needs some improvement, which he himself can easily accomplish.

THE LESSON QUIZ.

March 24, 1912.

[Copyright, 1911, by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D. D.]

Feasting and Fasting. Mark ii:13-22. Golden Text—I came not to call the righteous, but sinners. Mark ii:17.

(1.) Verse 13—Why is it not the duty of every Christian to be like Jesus, who made the chief work of his life the extension of the kingdom of God?

(2.) If the masses will not come to the church, is it not, and why, the duty of the church to take the gospel to the masses as Jesus did?

(3.) Verse 4—When is it the duty of a business man to follow the example of Levi, give up his business and devote himself wholly to preaching the gospel?

(4.) If God calls any man to preach His gospel and he refuses, can he remain the reconciled son of God? Give your reasons.

(5.) Verse 15—What good or harm is done the cause of God by having banquets or other festive gatherings in connection with Christian work?

(6.) What, in view of this incident, can you say for or against ministers or other earnest Christians freely mixing with worldly men at social functions?

(7.) Verse 16—How would you characterize the criticism of these Pharisees of Jesus for mixing with publicans and sinners?

(8.) Verse 17—Did Jesus mean that he loved the bad more than he did good people, and what was his attitude to both classes?

(9.) What was the real mission of Jesus in the world?

(10.) In what sense is Jesus interested in a very bad man more than in a very good man?

(11.) Verses 18-19—Why did the disciples of John fast and the disciples of Jesus not fast?

(12.) What purposes were supposed to be accomplished by fasting?

(13.) Why did Jesus fast when his disciples did not?

(14.) Verse 20—Does this verse amount to a command as well as a prediction that Christians should and would fast after Jesus' departure from the earth?

(15.) It was the practice of the early church to fast, especially before solemn appointments. Why was it discontinued, and would it be a good thing to recommence the practice?

(16.) Verses 21-22—What is the use of forms without the spirit necessary for carrying them out?

(17.) Why is it not possible for mere formalism to exist if the church is energized by the holy spirit? (This is one of the questions that may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

S.S.S. CURES OLD SORES

If an old sore existed simply because the flesh was diseased at that particular spot, it would be an easy matter to apply some remedy directly to the place that would kill the germs; or the diseased flesh might be removed by a surgical operation and a cure effected. But the very fact that old sores resist every form of local or external treatment, and even return after being cut away, shows that back of them is a morbid cause which must be removed before a cure can result. Just as long as the pollution continues in the blood, the ulcer remains an open cesspool for the deposit of impurities which the circulation throws off. S. S. S. cures Old Sores by purifying the blood. It removes every trace of impurity and taint from the circulation, and thus completely does away with the cause. When S. S. S. has cleansed the blood, the sore begins to heal, and it is not a surface cure, but the healing process begins at the bottom; soon the discharge ceases, the inflammation leaves, and the place fills in with firm, healthy flesh. Under the purifying and tonic effects of S. S. S. the system is built up, and those whose health has been impaired by the drain and worry of an old sore will be doubly benefited by its use. Book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice free to all who write.

A HARMLESS WAY TO DARKEN THE HAIR

A Little Sage and Sulphur Makes Gray Hair Vanish—A Remedy for All Hair Troubles

Who does not know the value of sage and sulphur for keeping the hair dark, soft, glossy and in good condition? As a matter of fact, sulphur is a natural element of hair, and a deficiency of it in the hair is held by many scalp specialists to be connected with loss of color and vitality of the hair. Unquestionably, there is no better remedy for hair and scalp troubles, especially premature grayness, than sage and sulphur, if properly prepared. The Wyeth Chemical Company of New York put up an ideal remedy of this kind, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, and authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

If you have dandruff, or if your hair is thin or turning gray, get a bottle of this remedy from your druggist to-day, and see what it will do for you.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

Paxtine
ANTISEPTIC

In the toilet—to cleanse and whiten the teeth, remove tartar and prevent decay. To disinfect the mouth, destroy disease germs, and purify the breath. To keep artificial teeth and bridgework clean and odorless. To remove nicotine from the teeth and purify the breath after smoking. To eradicate perspiration odors by sponge bathing.

As a medicinal agent for local treatment of feminine ills where pelvic catarrh, inflammation and ulceration exist, nothing equals hot douches of Paxtine. For ten years the Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co. has been regularly advising their patients to use it because of its extraordinary cleansing, healing and germicidal power. For this purpose alone Paxtine is worth its weight in gold. Also for nasal catarrh, sore throat, inflamed eyes, cuts and wounds. All druggists, 25 and 50 cents a box. Trial box and testimony of 31 women free on request.

TASTE, SMELL AND HEARING GONE

Destroyed by Catarrh Can Be Quickly Restored by Using Ely's Cream Balm.

The thousands who suffer the miseries of colds and catarrh and claim they have never found a cure can get instant relief by simply anointing the nostrils with Ely's Cream Balm.

Unlike internal mixtures which upset the stomach, or strong snuffs which only aggravate the trouble, this cleansing, healing, antiseptic Balm instantly reaches the seat of the trouble, stops the nasty discharge, clears the nose, head and throat, and brings back the sense of taste, smell and hearing. More than this, it strengthens the weakened and diseased tissues, thus protecting you against a return of the trouble. This remedy will cure a cold in a day, and prevent its becoming chronic or resulting in catarrh.

Nasal catarrh is an inflammation of the membrane lining the air passages, and cannot be reached by mixtures taken into the stomach, nor can it be cured by snuffs and powders which only cause additional irritation. Don't waste time on them. Get a 50 cent bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist, and after using it for a day you will wish you had tried it sooner.

CHAPTER XIII.

FLIGHT.

STEELE mounted the stairs to the attic. From the high window there he could see, around a curve in the row, a loitering figure. Quickly coming down to the second story, he began cautiously to examine from the windows the situation of the house in relation to adjoining grounds and neighboring dwellings.

To the right the top of the high wall shone with the customary broken bits of glass; the rear defenses glistened also in formidable fashion. He noted, however, several places where this safeguard against unwelcome invasion showed signs of deterioration. In one or two spots the jagged fragments had been broken or had fallen off. These slight breaks in the continuity of irregular, menacing glass bits he fixed in mind by a certain shrub or tree. Against the rear wall, which was of considerable height, leaned his neighbor's low conservatory, almost spanning it from side to side.

"Sure, sir, I don't know whether it's breakfast or supper that's waiting for you," Captain Forsythe's man had reappeared and stood now at the top of the landing looking in at him. "It's a sound sleep you've had."

John Steele glanced at the clock. The afternoon was waning.

The servant was now eying the visitor dubiously. John Steele wheeled, a perfunctory answer on his lips, and, going to the dining room, swallowed hastily a few mouthfuls.

He made up his mind as to his course then, the last desperate shift. Amid a turmoil of thoughts a certain letter he had had in mind to send to Captain Forsythe occurred to him, and, calling for paper and pen, he wrote there, facing the window, feverishly, hastily, several pages. Then he gave the letter to the servant for the postman, whose special call at the iron knocker without had just sounded. The letter would have served John Steele ill had it fallen into his enemies' hands, but once in the care of the royal mails it would be safe. If it were, indeed, that person at the gate and not some one—

"One moment, Dennis!" The man paused. "Of course you will make sure it is the postman?"

"As if I didn't know his knock!" he said, departing.

John Steele's pulses now throbbed expectantly. He had obtained a key to the gate and moved toward the front door. By this time the darkness had deepened, and, key in hand, he stepped out.

At first he walked toward the front on the gravel that the servant might hear him, but near the entrance he paused, hesitating, to look out. As he remained thus some one who had been standing not far off drew near. John Steele stole around the place until he reached the back wall.

There he examined his position, felt the top, then placed his fingers on the wall. It was about six feet high; but, seizing hold, he was about to spring into the air, when behind him, from the direction of the row, a low metallic sound caught his attention. The front gate to the Forsythe house had suddenly clicked. Some one had entered.

John Steele looked back. Even as he did so a number of figures abruptly ran forward from the gate. He waited no longer, but drew himself up to a level with the top of the wall. The effort made him acutely aware of his wounded shoulder. He winced, but set his teeth hard and swung himself over until one foot came in contact with the iron frame of the greenhouse next to the masonry. To crawl to the end of the lean-to, bending to hold to the wall and then to let himself down, occupied but a brief interval.

He heard behind him an imperative knocking at the front door of Captain Forsythe's house, succeeded by the noise of feet hastening into the house.

For some time nothing save these sounds was wafted to the listener. Then a loud, disappointed voice, sounding above another voice, came from a half opened window. John Steele stood still no longer. Great hazard, almost certain capture, lay before him in the direction he was going—the street this garden led to would be watched—but he could not remain where he was. He moved quickly forward. As he neared the house, more imposing than Captain Forsythe's, a stream of light poured from a window. Through this bright space he darted quickly, catching a fleeting view of people within, several with their faces turned toward him. Close to a side of the square looking house he paused, his heart beating fast. To attempt to reach the gate, to get out to Surrey road, little doubt existed as to what awaited him there. He remained motionless. Sharp twinges again shot through his shoulder. Then on a sudden he became unmindful of physical discomfort. A plan of action that had flashed through his brain held him oblivious to all else. It offered only the remotest chance of escape but still a chance, which he weighed, determined to take! It had come to him while listening to the merry voices within the room near him talking of the gay dinner just ended, of the box party at the theater that was to follow.

Already cabs were at the door. A servant walked out and unlocked the gate, and with light badinage the company issued forth. As they did so John Steele, unobserved, stepped forward. In the semidarkness the party passed through the entrance into the street. Taking his place among the last of the laughing, dimly seen figures, John Steele walked boldly on and found himself a moment later on the sidewalk of Surrey road. He was aware that some one, a woman, had touched his arm as if to take it, of a light feminine voice and an abrupt exclamation of surprise. Walking swiftly to one of the last cabs, he sprang in.

"A little errand first, driver," he called out. "To"—and mentioned a street—"as fast as you can." The man straightened, touched his horse with his whip, and, wheeling quickly, they dashed away.

As they did so John Steele thought he heard exclamations behind. Looking through the cab window, he saw at the gate the company gazing after him, obviously not yet recovered from their thrill of surprise following his unexpected action. He observed also two men on the other side of the street, who now ran across and held a brief altercation with one of the cabs. As they were about to enter the cab several persons in the party apparently intervened, expostulating vigorously. It was not difficult to surmise the resentment of the group at this attempted summary seizure of a second one of their cabs.

"Those men must not overtake us, cabby. Go where you will! You understand?"

The man did. His fingers closed quickly on a sovereign, and once more he lashed his horse. For some time they continued at a rapid pace, now skirting the confines of the park, now plunging into a puzzling tangle of streets, but wherever they went the other cab managed always to keep them in sight. It even began to creep up nearer. From his pocket John Steele drew a weapon. His eyes gleamed ominously. The pursuing hansom drew closer. Casting a hurried glance over his shoulder, he again called up to the driver.

"It's no use, guv'nor," came back the reply. "This 'oss 'as been out longer than 'is."

"Then turn the first dark corner and slow up a bit, for only a second. Afterward go on your very best as long as you can."

Another sovereign changed hands, and shortly afterward the vehicle dashed into a side street. It appeared as likely a place as any for his purpose. John Steele, hardly waiting for the man to draw rein, leaped out as far as he might. He landed without mishap, heard a whip snap furiously and darted back into a doorway. He had just reached it when the other cab drew near. For an instant he felt certain that he had been seen, but the pursuers' eyes were bent eagerly ahead.

"This'll mean a fiver for you, my man," he heard one of them shout to the driver. "We've got him, by"—A harsh, jubilant cry cut the air; then they were gone.

John Steele did not wait. Replacing the weapon in his pocket, he started quickly around the corner. His cabman could not lead them far; they would soon return.

Which way should he move? His face burned with fever; he did not heed it. A long, broad thoroughfare as he walked on had suddenly unfolded itself to his gaze. One side of this highway shone resplendent with the dashing lights of numerous stands and stalls displaying vegetables and miscellaneous articles.

About to turn back from this animated scene, John Steele hesitated. The road ran straight and sure toward the destination he wished to reach, while on either hand lay a network of devious ways.

He decided, crossed the street. Lights gleamed in his face. He pushed his way through the people unmolested and strode on, followed only by the noise of passing vehicles and carts. On, on John Steele moved; on, on. Time passed. It would be a hard battle, but once in that part of the city he was striving to reach he might find those willing to offer him shelter—low-born, miserable wretches he had helped. In their midst was the one man in the world who could throw a true light on the events of the past, enable him to—

Behind him some one followed, some one who drew ever nearer, with soft, skulking steps which now he heard—"Mr. Steele!" Even as he wheeled his name was called out.

Before the sudden fierce passion gleaming on John Steele's face, the bright flame of his look, the person who had accosted him shrank back. His pinched and pale face showed surprise, fear. Almost incoherently he began to stammer.

Steele looked about. They two, as far as he could see, were alone.

"I ask your pardon." The fellow found his voice. "I'll not be troubling you further, Mr. Steele."

"You were about to beg—of me?" John Steele smiled.

Dandy Joe began to shuffle off in a spiritless way when—

"You are hungry?" said John Steele. "A little, sir."

"A modest answer in view of the actual truth, I suspect," observed the other. But, although his words were brusque, he felt in his pocket. A sovereign—it was all he had left about him. When he had departed post-haste for Strathorn House he had neglected to furnish himself with funds for an indefinite period. A contingency he should have foreseen had arisen. For the present he could not appear at the bank to draw against the balance he always maintained there. John Steele fingered that last sovereign, started to turn, when he caught the look in the other's eyes. Did it recall to him his own plight but a short twenty-four hours before?

"Very well!" he said, and was about to give the coin to the man and walk away when another thought held him.

This fellow had been a link in a certain chain of events. The temptation grew to linger with him, the single, tangible, though paltry and useless figure in the drama he could lay hands on. John Steele looked around. In a byway he saw the lighted window of a cheap oyster buffet. Motivating to the man, he wheeled abruptly and started for it.

A few minutes later found them seated in the shabby back room. A number of faded sporting pictures adorned the wall. One—how John Steele started!—showed the Frisco Pet in a favorite attitude.

Steele spoke now. His dark eyes shone strangely. A sardonic expression lurked there. The proprietor could bring his companion a steak if he had one. Large or small? Large, with an enigmatical smile.

The proprietor hustled out.

A voice, hoarse, that of a man, was heard:

"The blasted fog is coming down fast."

The smaller man drew back. A shiver seemed to run over him. "They are a long while about the steak," he murmured.

"Your testimony helped to send him over the water, I believe?" said Steele, pointing out the picture of the Frisco Pet to Dandy Joe.

"How do you—? I ain't on the stand now, Mr. Steele!" A spark of defiance momentarily came into Dandy Joe's eyes.

"No, no!" John Steele leaned back. "The harm's been done so far as you are concerned. You as a factor have disappeared from the case."

"Glad to hear you say so, Mr. Steele. I mean," the other's voice was uncertain, cautious, "that's a matter long since dead and done with. But as for my testimony helping to send him over the water?"

"Or under?" sotto voce. Joe swallowed. "It was true, every word of it."

"Good!" John Steele spoke almost listlessly. "Always stick by any one who sticks to you, whether a friend or a pal or a patron."

"A patron!" From the other's lips fell an oath.

"But even if there had been something not quite strictly in accord—which there wasn't"—quickly—"a man couldn't ginsay what had been said," Dandy Joe began.

"He could," indifferently.

"But that would be—"

"Confessing to perjury? Yes?"

"Hold on, Mr. Steele!" The man's eyes began to shine with alarm. "I'm not on the—"

"I know. And it wouldn't do any good if you were."

"You mean"—in spite of himself the fellow's tones wavered—"because he's under the water?"

"No; I had in mind that even if he hadn't been drowned, your—"

"Wot! Hadn't?"

"That," said John Steele, "doesn't matter. The principal subject of any consequence relating to you is the steak, which is now coming." As he spoke he rose, leaving Dandy Joe alone at the table.

For a time he did not speak, sitting before a cheerless fire that feebly attempted to assert itself.

Once when the proprietor stepped in he asked, without looking around, for a certain number of grains of quinine with a glass of water—they probably kept it at the bar. Yes; the man always had it on hand and brought it in.

By this time Dandy Joe had pushed back his chair. His dull eyes gleamed with satisfaction, also perhaps a little calculation. He was thinking. A certain matter in which self interest played no small part had come to mind. Joe regarded him covertly. "Asking your pardon for referring to it—but you've helped so many a poor chap—there's an old pal of mine what is down on his luck, and he was asking of me for a good lawyer who could give him a straight talk."

"I am not at present"—Steele experienced a sense of grim humor—"looking for new clients."

"Well, I thought I'd be mentioning the matter, sir. You see, he's been out of old England for a long time and was going away again, when wot should he suddenly hear but that his old woman that was died and left a few hundred pounds or so—enough to start a nice little pub for him and me to run—only it's in the hands of a trustee, who is waiting for him to appear and claim it."

"You say he has been out of England?" John Steele stopped. "How long?"

"A good many years. There was one or two little matters ag'in him when he left home, so he wanted to see a lawyer and find out, in any case, how he could get his money without—"

"The law getting hold of him. What is his name?"

"Tom Rogers."

The blood surged to Steele's temples. "You can give me this Tom Rogers' address." He could barely control his voice in his agitation.

"I, sir—you see, I can't quite do that, for Tom's laying low, you understand. But if you would let him call around quiet-like on you?"

"On me?" Steele spoke slowly, "I hardly think the case will prove sufficiently attractive." The proprietor stepped in. Steele took the change that was laid on the table, leaving a half crown, which he indicated that Dandy Joe could appropriate.

"Better not think of going now, sir," the proprietor said to John Steele. "Never saw anything like it the way the fog has thickened."

Dandy Joe stepped toward the door. "I'm going to have a try."

John Steele waited a moment, then with a perfunctory nod walked quietly to the front door. He looked in the direction his late companion had turned. His figure was just discernible. In a moment it would have been swallowed by the fog, when quickly John Steele walked after him.

Seymour People Give Credit Where Credit Is Due.

People of Seymour who suffer with sick kidneys and bad backs want a kidney remedy that can be depended upon. The best is Doan's Kidney Pills, a medicine for the kidneys only, made from pure roots and herbs, and the one that is backed by cures in Seymour.

Read what follows:

It's convincing testimony.

Mrs. Sheridan Burge, Third and Blish Streets, Seymour, Ind., says: "I am enjoying excellent health at the present time, thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills. I was so miserable that I about gave up all hope of ever being well. Pains in my back drove me almost frantic and I could not do much work. The kidney secretions were unnatural and I lost in weight until I was but a mere shadow of my former self. I doctored faithfully and tried various remedies but not until I used Doan's Kidney Pills did I get permanent relief. This preparation proved its worth by ridding my system of kidney disease."

Campaign Songs.

The Washington Post says: "The 'houn' dawg' song from the Ozarks, enthusiastically adopted by the Champ Clark boosters as their battle cry for 1912, is destined to take its place in history along with the most famous tunes to which candidates ever marched to victory. There is in this ditty from the hills of imperial Missouri a sentimental appeal capable of turning thousands of votes; for we Americans love fair play, and the mere reflection that somebody or other has been engaged in kicking the Democratic dawg around is sufficient to make us resolve to put an end to the nefarious business."

"Few of our Presidents but have ridden through the White House portals on the crest of a campaign slogan set to irresistibly subtle music. Who that remembers the first Lincoln campaign could ever forget:

Lincoln on a white horse,
Douglass on a mule;
Lincoln is a wise man,
Douglass is a fool.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad has appointed supervisors of transportation, reporting to Charles Selden, general inspector of transportation, as to the conditions of passenger service, the prompt dispatch of trains and other matters of a general nature which will tend to advance excellence of service as well as prevent any infraction of train rules that may come to their attention. T. W. Eggleston, former chief train dispatcher of Baltimore and P. Judge, who formerly filled the same position at Grafton, have been promoted to the positions. The supervisors of transportation will spend a great deal of their time traveling on the trains of the Baltimore and Ohio, and will give trainmen and other railroad employees the benefit of suggestions leading to raise the standard of service.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., March 22.—Temporarily abrogated are the iron-clad contracts which the large coal companies and the coal carrying roads held with the individual operators of the anthracite regions. For the next three months no effort will be made to enforce the strict wording of these contracts, and as a consequence the individual operators will be permitted to dispose of his own coal at any price he can command.

The action of the big operators in setting aside these agreements is taken to mean by mine leaders and miners in general that the coal companies are preparing for a strike and that some consideration is given the individual for the purpose of financially preparing himself for a struggle.

Nearly all of the smaller operators in the anthracite fields held contracts with such companies as the Lehigh, the D. L. & W. and the Pennsylvania. These contracts called for the smaller companies turning every pound of coal except that sold at retail at the colliery to the larger companies and the coal-carrying roads. The individual operator accepted a basis of 65 per cent of the tidewater prices for their output, the transportation charges being borne by the road.

Desiring to let the individual operator share big profits and sell his coal at the best prices, the contracts were temporarily set aside, three months being fixed as the length of abrogation. With this step taken the individual operators have now secured their own selling agents. They have practically placed their products up at auction and are knocking it down to the highest bidders. As a result of this privilege they are enjoying extraordinary prosperity and thousands of dollars are being dumped into their treasury.

HOTEL SETTLED

Indignity to Married Couple Was Adjusted Out of Court.

New York, March 22.—The two suits for $50,000 each brought by Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Favis of Birmingham, Ala., against the Hotel Astor because they were ejected from the hotel one morning at 7 o'clock, when an unsigned letter was received saying they were not married, was settled after Supreme Court Justice Erlanger had been informed that one of the jurors had been talking to a witness for the hotel company.

The court would have been obliged to declare a mistrial, but the hotel company agreed to pay $1,500 each to the plaintiffs, and this settlement was accepted.

Made Sure of Death.

New York, March 22.—A middle-aged woman, who registered as Mrs. Wilson of Philadelphia at the St. Denis hotel committed suicide there by inhaling gas through the rubber tube that connected the chandelier and the reading lamp on her table. She was found sitting in an armchair, the tube hanging at her side, a pillow case over her head, and a wad of cotton smelling of chloroform resting upon her bosom. She had stuffed the cracks of the door and windows.
